Applications for Australian University Admission

International students applying for admission to universities in NSW and the ACT

International students are those students who are not Australian or New Zealand citizens or Australian permanent residents. Previously, only Australian and New Zealand citizens could apply through the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC) for entry into universities in NSW and the ACT; international students were required to apply directly to the relevant university or universities.

Admissions, all students, including international students will apply through UAC for entry into universities in NSW and the ACT. This means that all students will apply only once, and on their applications can include up to nine courses from any of UAC's participating institutions.

The UAC Guide, contains information about courses and the participating institutions as well as application procedures. The guide will be available on the UAC website at www.uac.edu.au
